

Thank you for downloading the AiTS price list

The collision investigation section of the price list has changed this year to incorporate the new degree modules. All the old courses are still available, however their name may have changed or you might find they have been incorporated into a larger module.

For example the AiDamage Operators course is now part of a module called Collision Investigation Technologies and has been renamed Damage Analysis as shown below.

	Credit value	You come to us (price per student) Collision Investigation Technologies
a) Damage Analysis	30	a) £660 + accommodation
b) Forensic mapping		b) £440 + accommodation
c) Tachograph Calibration		c) £750 + accommodation

You can still attend the Damage Operators Course even though you are not registered for the degree and you do not have to sit the whole module. The content of the course remains the same.

One other change is that all the collision investigation modules are now assessed and AiTS certificates have been changed from 'has attended' to 'has passed'. If you are registered with DMU you will find that as well as the end of module assessment there is usually further project work when you return to your workplace.
